Drivability by Probability

Written by Trevor Schrock

There are two ways to turn when it comes to Drive by the Dice. If you roll and get an even number, you have to turn left. If you roll an odd number, you have to turn right. There was a whole lot of rolling being done on May 8th, 2015. The Youth Group assembled at the Church on a beautiful day with a blue sky and perfect temperature of sixty-three degrees.

The whole point of Drive by the Dice is to complete tasks that are worth a certain amount of points. During each activity, a group member needed to record a video or take a picture of the act, or else it wouldn't be worth any points. There were four groups with various amounts of people per group. In my group was: Logan Bender, Charlie Griffith, Kendell Schrock, and myself. As usual, it was a mad dash to get out of the parking lot of the Church, and accidents may have occurred but were not focused on. Our first mission was to take a selfie with a cow (worth five points). Charlie was more than excited to volunteer for the job. Our next stop was at the Accident park. There we ran around all the bases at the baseball field, and walked twenty yards in unison as Logan was yelling the "Left! Right!" command to make sure that our feet fell in place. We got back in the car, rolled the dice, and got a six, so we decided to stop at Rick's gas station and get exactly ten cents of gas. While we were in the car, Logan and Charlie saw that they could drink a 2-liter bottle of soda to get ten points. After they came out of the store I saw that both Logan and Charlie bought separate liters of soda (they both made a wise choice of Mountain Dew). They didn't realize that they both got a two-liter bottle, even though they only needed one, but I thought I should just let them do their thing). Logan and Chuckie are now halfway through their bottles, when they're starting to feel the pressure of the carbonated soda in their stomachs, and me and Kendell telling them that we need these points. Each of them let out some manly amounts of gas by burping for relief, but Chucky couldn't go on and had to drop out. Now Logan was our only hope, but started to slow down. He let out another belch but a little more came out than he intended...

Youth Quotes:

- "Red, brown, yellow, black, and white, duh, duh, duh, duh, duh, duh, duh, the little people of the world" -Jeffrey, at Quiz Camp after he jumped on a finish this song practice question.
- "We are having green beans for pizza" -Sam, trying to say supper.
- "No fair! You have four legs!" -Matthew, while frantically chasing after a wild cat with several other Youth Group members.

Editors Note

Hi everyone! Last week the Youth Group had an incredible time at Youth Camp. It was probably one of my favorite years of them all. There were lots of growing moments at the campfire, devotions, and sessions, as the speaker challenged us to be sincere and to love God with all our heart, soul, mind, and strength. Along with that, there were also some hysterical moments we shared. If you ever wondered what happens at a youth group talent (or comedy) show, what happens when you try to throw a sponsor in the lake, what happens when you are late for a meal, or what happens when the guys and girls face off in a spontaneous, hilarious late night sing off, stay tuned to the next issue!

Thank you Trevor, Sam, Carrie, Ian, and Miranda for filling this issue! Even if some of you had to put up with the Youth Group for getting your things to me late.. but we won't mention any names :).

Until next time, Morgan.

As we backed away from the stained circle in the parking lot, Logan finished the last bit of Mountain Dew and we were finally on our way. After completing some more tasks, like giving a stranger a compliment, tipping someone without buying anything, buying a child a Hershey bar, getting our whole team to climb in a tree, and doing cartwheels across Jerry and Cindy's driveway, we all came back to the Church to tally up the points and share our experiences.

In the end, our team came in second to last place, which felt like a slap in the face. I guess Logan throwing up wasn't enough to get first place. But that's the luck you get when you drive by the dice.

Youth Leaders Update

As this school year is coming to a close for most of you, it is bringing about a lot of change in your life. For some it is closing a chapter and having to make a bigger decision than anything you have faced before. You are getting to choose what you want to do for the next months, years, and for the rest of your life. More importantly you will be discerning what God wants for you. For others it is bringing about summer jobs, family vacations, mission trips, and many other fun activities. It gives you a break from your daily studies at school. It is also an exciting time for the Youth Group as a whole. This weekend we will go to Camp Peniel for Youth Camp. Peniel was the name that Jacob gave to the place where he wrestled with God. For some of you your time at Camp Peniel will be a time that you wrestle with God. It will be a time that you seek to hear His voice and to know His plans for you. But, this shouldn't just happen when you are on a trip with the Youth Group. Wherever you are you can encounter God and seek to know Him better.

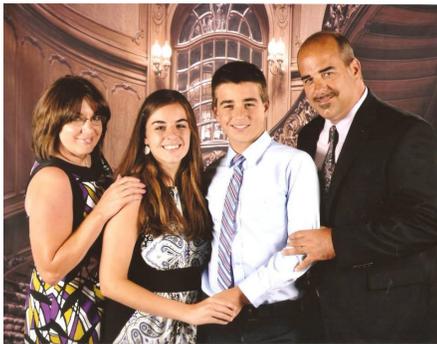

We pray that as we go through the next several months that we are provided with many opportunities to grow deeper in our love for Christ, serving others, loving like Jesus, and seeking to know Him more. We are so excited to watch Christ move in your life. Throughout this summer we will watch you go through the pain of removing things from your life that are not of Him and we will see the joy you experience as you "grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 3:18). -Sam and Carrie
